

NEIL EDWIN HUGHES

Who: "I am a hairstylist and owner of Disconnected Salon in North Park. I live life doing what I love to do every day, making people feel great about themselves. My business is my pleasure, and people are my driving force."

Age: 29

Hangs out: "U31, Blufoot, Pink Elephant, Scolari's Office."

Best place for lunch: "Urban Solace."

Favorite bands: "Bloc Party, Bjork, Damian Rice, Metallica."

Last song you downloaded: "M.I.A.'s 'Paper Planes.'"

Clicks: "MySpace.com and Yelp.com."

Plays: "I'm not allowed to play them."

Watches: "'Dog Whisperer,' 'Project Runway,' 'I Love New York.'"

Reads: "'Island of the Blue Dolphins,' by Scott O Dell."

Loves: "New new new ... shoes, technology, accessories, toys."

Hates: "Old, ugly, broken."

Street

THE SAN DIEGO UNION-TRIBUNE

Nancee E. Lewis / Union-Tribune

HAPPY HOUR OF THE WEEK

Super Tuesday at Winston's, where you think and drink

WINSTON'S, 1921 BACON ST., OCEAN BEACH.
(619) 222-6822.

You go to OB for pipe wipes and corn dogs. And you go to Winston's for the Jerry Garcia seances on Mondays.

But who knew you went to OB and specifically Winston's for the Tuesday Happy Hour from 6-8 p.m. to prove that thinking and drinking are possible, together, and without catching fire and burning alive? Because you just might walk away the winner of their free trivia night, hosted by Jesse-San with Jose Sinatra.

They kick off the comp with a free kazi shot for Think-&-Drink-trivia players. ("Raspberry, peach vodka, cranberry juice, triple sec and a lot of good stuff," a pretty bartender riffed the ingredients hesitantly. One patron described it as "Hi-C." Subsequent kazi shots cost $2.)

Other hospitalities include $11 pitchers of beer (seems expensive to us, too), $3 Pabst

Keli Dailey / Union-Tribune

Blue Ribbons and pizza kept in a pile of desultory delivery boxes: There's a bucket at the end of THE bar, drop in a buck and help yourself to a slice. And notice how the "Monster Garage"-esque bouncer at the door actually likes meeting people.

Regular Monday-Friday Happy Hours from 6 to 8 p.m. have their charms, too: a dollar or two off most drinks. There are rumors of $1.50 Buds from 6-6:30 p.m., and that you might see the New Directions champs on Winston's Think & Drink Bowling Bus Trip on Jan. 26.

- KELI DAILEY

READ THE ENTIRE HAPPY HOUR REVIEW AT UTSTREET.COM.

ALSO ONLINE

THE BIAS CUT: Welcome the waistline back

OFF-THE-WALL: You are what you throw away

¿DONDE ESTA DERRIK?: Tijuana's unofficial tour guide, Franklin Collao

FILMS: '27 Dresses': Always a bridesmaid, never a bride

HEARD ON STREET

Our Street Person, chef Scott Wagner ("but most people know me by Chef Scotty"), drew a crowd:

From Jill Lines: Love Scott, love his food. Where will we be able to buy his product line?

From Susan Roessler: He is truly a remarkable person and his cuisine is superb.

From Kim Scott: Once Chef Scotty comes into your life it will never be the same (in a very good way)! If he could only bottle and add his amazing energy and huge heart to the culinary genius and creativity already in his Chi Cuisine product line it would be truly complete.

From Daniel Lowry: chef scotty can cook his way into the heart of anyone open to a new flavor and renewed outlook on the world in regards to one of our most enjoyable senses. his passion is the true secret ingredient.